Following a long, strict and thorough evaluation by the Register Sub-Committee (RSC), 20 nominations from all over the Asia-Pacific Region were accepted and recommended by the RSC for provisional inscription to the MOWCAP Regional Register. On the third day of the meeting, the nominators of documentary heritages applying for inscription to the MOWCAP Regional Register 2024 gave a presentation on their respective elements/files. In their review on Bangladesh's nomination, the RSC mentioned, "Sultana's Dream and Rokeya have become synonymous with women's liberation in the subcontinent and beyond, including recent films and visual art forms. The nominated documents are significant sources about Rokeya's life, and her great contribution to society and to the education of girls in particular.

Rokeya resided in then Bengal state of British India, and Sultana's Dream was originally published in English in an Indian journal. However, later editions, translations and other non-print manifestations of the work, as well as recognition of Rokeya's contributions have been particularly strong in present day Bangladesh."

Based on that presentation and the RSC's recommendation a voting was cast on those 20 nominations for final inscription. Mr. Mofidul Hoque, Trustee, Liberation War Museum and Convener, Bangladesh Memory of the World Committee gave a five minutes' presentation on "Sultana's Dream" by Rokeya S. Hossain". In his presentation he introduced Rokeya S. Hossain to the meeting, a woman ahead of her time, remained unsung for long. Since the 1960's Rokeya and Sultana's Dream gradually got recognition nationally, regionally and globally. He explained the historical significance of "Sultana's Dream" and its relevance and significance to the whole world at present times and in future.

This year 40 member states participated in the meeting among which 38 participated as nominators. After a long submission, revision and resubmission by the Liberation War Museum and after a thorough reviewing process and voting finally 20 nominations were declared for inscription on the MOWCAP Regional Register. Bangladesh's "Sultana's Dream" by Rokeya S. Hossain" is now proudly represented on the MOWCAP Regional Register.

UNESCO published the list of 20 successfully inscribed items to the MOWCAP Regional Register for Asia-Pacific in their website. In a news published on their website UNESCO mentioned, "The 2024 cycle also celebrated science and literature, recognizing Bangladesh's sci-fi feminist author, Rokeya S. Hossain, who imagined both helicopters and solar panels before they had been invented in her 1905 utopian narrative, Sultana's Dream".

"Sultana's Dream" by Rokeya S. Hossain" is the first ever element from Bangladesh to be inscribed on the MOWCAP Regional Register. Bangladesh has a rich collection of documentary heritage which needs to be inventoried, preserved and promoted nationally, regionally and globally. The new Bangladesh Memory of the World Committee has started working on collecting information on the potential, unique and rare documentary heritages of Bangladesh. With the inscription of "Sultana's Dream" by Rokeya S. Hossain" on the MOWCAP Regional Register Bangladesh has joined the MOWCAP with rejuvenating enthusiasm.
