Dear Sir,

Subject: Dissemination of Call for Expressions of Interest – Global Leaders Group on Antimicrobial Resistance (GLG AMR)

This is to bring your attention the Call for Expressions of Interest (EOI) for membership of the Global Leaders Group on Antimicrobial Resistance (GLG AMR) as attached.

The Global Leaders Group seeks to engage distinguished leaders with demonstrated experience and influence across sectors relevant to antimicrobial resistance (AMR), in order to strengthen global advocacy, political commitment, and coordinated action based on a One Health approach.

In this regard, we would like to kindly request the Ministry to consider sharing this opportunity with suitable high-level candidates, including serving or former government ministers or individuals of equivalent standing, who have demonstrated leadership experience in relevant areas.

Please note that this communication is intended to inform and facilitate awareness of this global opportunity and does not imply endorsement or guarantee of selection.

If you need any clarification or technical support regarding the call, please feel free to contact Dr Aninda Rahman, National Professional Officer– AMR, WHO Bangladesh (anrahman@who.int).

Thank you for your continued collaboration and commitment to addressing antimicrobial resistance.

Re-advertised: Call for expression of Interest

14 May 2026 | News release | Reading time: 2 min (570 words)

The Global Leaders Group (GLG) on Antimicrobial Resistance (AMR) was established in November 2020 by the Quadripartite organizations (Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, United Nations Environment Programme, World Health Organization, and World Organisation for Animal Health) to accelerate political action on AMR, based on a One Health approach.

In line with the GLG Terms of Reference, the Quadripartite Joint Secretariat on AMR is re-advertising this call for expressions of interest for new GLG members to fill current vacancies and strengthen sectoral and geographic balance across the One Health spectrum.

The GLG welcomes expressions of interest from serving or former government ministers or equivalent, as well as C-suite-level leaders from the private sector, with demonstrated leadership experience and knowledge across One Health sectors. Under this re-advertised call, we particularly encourage applications from qualified leaders in the agriculture/livestock, animal health, and environmental sectors to strengthen One Health representation within the GLG, while continuing to welcome strong candidates across all One Health portfolios.

GLG role

Since its establishment, the GLG has actively carried out its mission to advise on and advocate for increased political action in the global response to AMR, guided by a rolling action plan with six priority areas and several key performance indicators. The GLG played a leading role in advocating for the United Nations General Assembly High-level Meeting on AMR held in September 2024, and in helping to shape the political declaration from that meeting. Following up on that the GLG revised its rolling action plan to support implementation of the political declaration, including in the key areas of financing, governance, surveillance, monitoring, and research and development.

Further information about the work of the GLG is available at its website.

Level of commitment

The GLG formally meets around three times a year, either virtually or in person. Informal or technical meetings to discuss specific issues are held virtually on an ad hoc basis. GLG members are expected to play an active and visible role in advancing the Group's mission, including by contributing substantively to strategic political and policy discussions, reviewing and shaping documents, and championing action on AMR within their respective leadership areas and networks. Members may be also invited to represent the GLG in international fora and to support advocacy and awareness-raising efforts at global, regional and national levels. New GLG members will be expected to join the GLG in the third quarter of 2026 for an initial two-year term.

Selection process

Members will be selected on the basis of their political and/or professional experience and must have demonstrated knowledge of or commitment to becoming familiar with AMR in human, animal or plant health, food production or the environmental sectors. The selection process will take into consideration gender balance, geographic diversity and representation from across the One Health spectrum. No honorarium is paid to GLG members.

Disclaimer

Applications will be treated confidentially. The Quadripartite organizations are not obliged to reveal or discuss with any applicant how an application was assessed, or to provide any other information related to the evaluation or selection process.

Application

Applicants should include a Curriculum Vitae (maximum 2 pages or 500 words) and a motivation letter (maximum 2 pages or 500 words) highlighting their past contributions and what they will contribute to the GLG. Applications should be sent to amr-glg@who.int with the subject heading "Application for membership of the Global Leaders Group on AMR".

Deadline for applications: 31 July 2026
