Term of Reference

International Conference on Islamic Youth Education 2017
Bandung, October 5-9th, 2017

“Reviving Islamic Education to the Modern World; a Lesson Learned from Indonesia”

This International Conference on Islamic Youth Education aims to facilitate youth from 56 OIC members countries to discuss a number of issues related to Islamic Education and the well-being of youth in Islamic countries. Its first part discusses how the religion of Islam constructed the status of youth, their well-being and the roles of families and the society in general. The role of youth on achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) through Islamic education and integrating SDGs with the Islamic values. The second, this conference discusses how education developed over the centuries to meet the needs of the evolving multi-ethnic Muslim society. It also discusses the post-colonial educational systems of Islamic countries and how they could integrate Moral/Religious education in their schools' curriculum.

The outcomes of this conference that the participants understand and bring ideas how Islam succeeded to revolutionize the views held regarding the status of youth, their rights, education and well-being when they finish the program in Indonesia. In addition, these conferences also emphasize the woman empowerment at OIC Countries. The participants enhance their religion and culture, expand their educational level, strengthen between families and youth ties, and establish non-violent methods for peace, institute integrity, and work for better future during the program. The program will utilize Islamic philosophy, education and training, and will also be active in our community by unifying youths.

Programs conducted by the Minister Youth and Sport of the Republic of Indonesia aim at providing well defined sources to engage Muslim youths in activities that remind and take actions to present the image of Islam through youth' unification and belief. This conference do not only aim at merely teaching the Islamic comprehension discussion, but also to bring awareness as to how to survive in this life by acquiring knowledge through Islamic education, to excel in socializing with others, to organize and contribute, and much more to obtain a good life based on Islamic values. In addition this program also reminds the importance of combatting the rise of xenophobic, racism, intolerance, culture-ignorance that nowadays re-emerges through education and interfaith dialogue. International Conference on Islamic Youth Education finds youths' intellectual capacity to always increasing and, thus, needs awakening.

The State Ministry of Youth and Sports of Indonesia are inviting 56 OIC selected young leaders to participate in The International Conference on Islamic Youth Education 2017. The participants will not only learn how to develop their public speaking skills but will also get to listen to one of the most motivational people in Indonesia discussing about the Islamic youth education improvement in the 21st century.

International Conference on Islamic Youth Education 2017 to seek the contributions of stakeholders, NGO activist, practitioners of religions from across the globe to foster mutual respect among diverse ethnic and religious groups. Furthermore, to support civil society and individuals who seek non-violent approaches to conflict and strive toward a shared future. International Conference on Islamic Youth Education 2017 will introduce and support initiatives that expand shared perceptions among individuals of different religions, cultures, genders, and ethnicities, including developing a strategy to overcoming misunderstandings and stereotypes that affect relations between groups and within societies.

This forum will bring together key stakeholders from the OIC Youth Countries, academic, government, non-government, United Nations, development banks, business and civil society to ensure that education is prioritized in sustainable development policies and planning on a global, national and regional level. This forum also announcing "World Youth Declaration" that committed to combat culture ignorance, and xenophobic.
