Vol. 17 No. 2
April-June 2017

From the Desk of the Editor

The quality of education, particularly at the tertiary level, has become an important issue of discussion in Bangladesh. It is beyond any debate that quality matters. We live in a global village and if we want to survive in this digital age we must give utmost priority in ensuring quality of our education and research. The University Grants Commission of Bangladesh has, in recent years, earnestly addressed the quality issues. A Quality Assurance Unit (QAU) has been established at UGC under Higher Education Quality Enhancement Project (HEQEP) with a view to promote a quality culture within the higher education institutions in Bangladesh ensuring good practices and governance. The QAU has established 69 Institutional Quality Assurance Cells (IQAC) at 69 universities -31 Public and 38 Private. The general objective of establishing IQAC is to promote quality academic culture within the university. One of the important functions of IQAC is to facilitate Self Assessment (SA) process at program level forming a Self Assessment Committee (SAC) in each entity. At present SACs of 812 program offering entities in 69 universities have been conducting SA process. The primary objectives of SA process are to record their best practices both in teaching and research as well as in governance followed by evaluation by experts including one foreign expert in quality issue. In the process the IQACs will have a chance to improve and sustain their program level and/or Institutional levels qualities. The Directors and Additional Directors have all been trained by foreign and local experts. The initial fund for this work came from HEQEP funds. The respective universities are required to incorporate future funding for IQAC activities into their annual recurring budgets. The Government has already enacted a law to establish Accreditation Council to evaluate and certify the program level and Institutional level qualities of universities. All of us need to clearly understand the significance and impact of quality education in the greater socio-economic development of our dear motherland. There is no time to think and ponder what to do. The world is moving ahead, and we must not fall behind.
