From the Desk of the Editor

There has been a paradigm shift in the expansion of higher education in Bangladesh during the last ten years of the present Government under the dynamic leadership of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina. Bangladesh is currently passing through a phenomenon known as demographic dividend and in order to reap the benefits of this once in a life time opportunity the present Government underscored the genuine need of encouraging education, particularly in science and technology and established eight Public Universities of Science and Technology in Bangladesh. It was expected that these universities would focus on Science and Technology-based education only. But unfortunately a number of Vice Chancellors have a tendency to deviate from the fundamental issue of Science and Technology education which the Government rightfully addressed and advised the UGC of Bangladesh to extend all possible cooperation in implementing the policy effectively. The thoughtless departure from the mission and vision of establishing Science & Technology universities by the Government must henceforth be stopped. We must realize the importance of education in science and technology to achieve SDG and MDG and act accordingly. The sooner we realize this the better for the country and thus fulfilling the dream of the Father of the Nation to create Sonar Bangla.
